

Do I Stink

From Autism Behavior Services, Inc.

“Adam,” his Dad calls. “Time to get up and brush your teeth.”

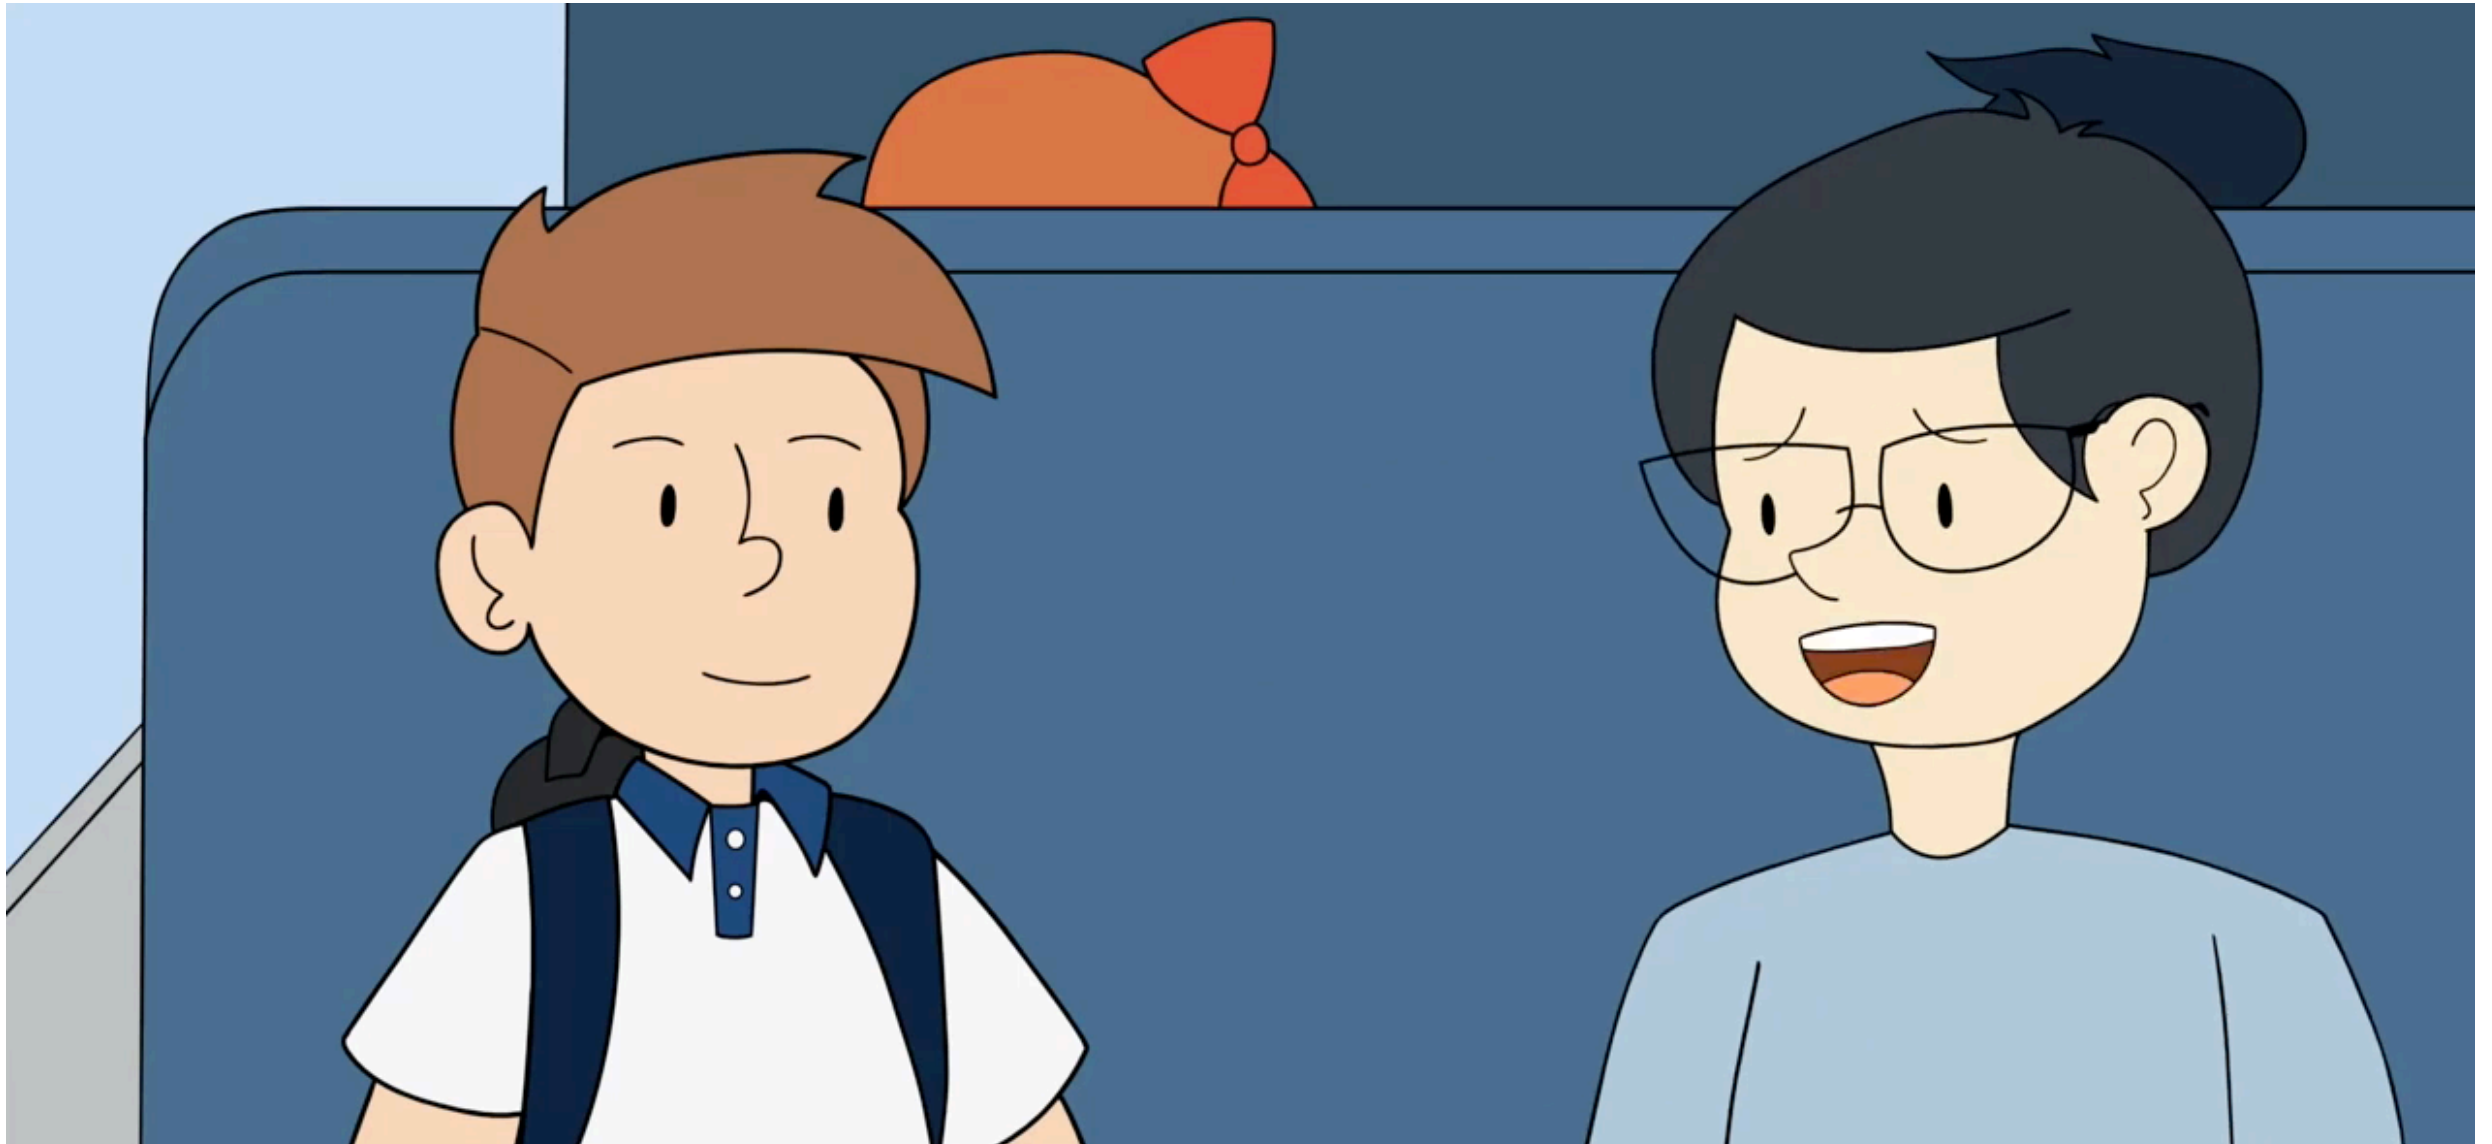

“Okay, dad.” Adam replies with a smile. “I’ll brush my teeth

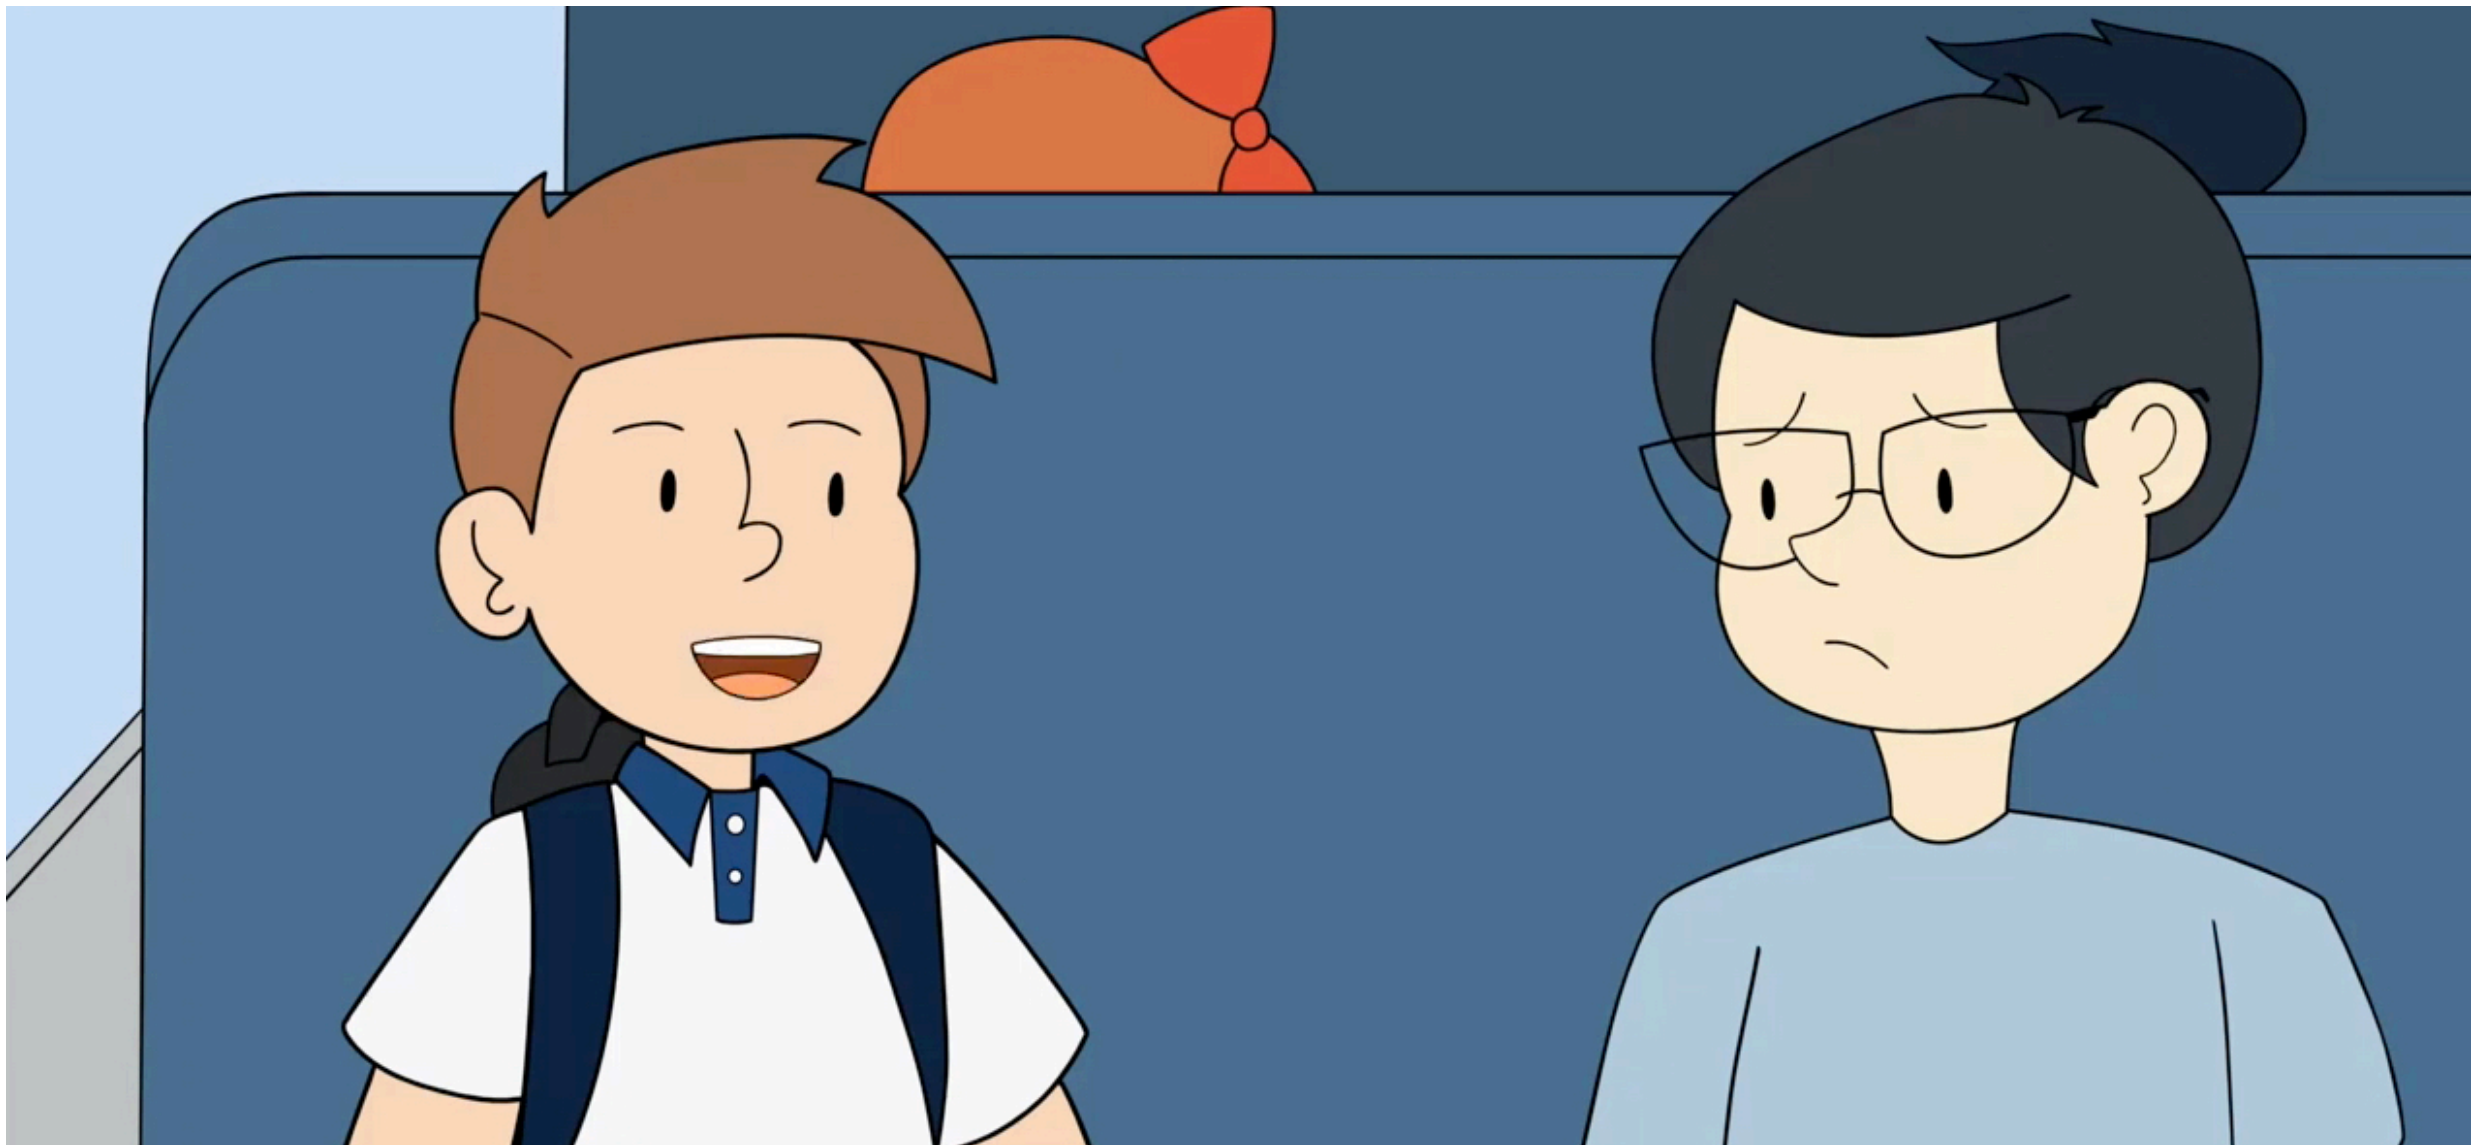

Sadly, Adam is so tired that he doesn't brush his teeth. In fact, he walks right passed his toothbrush.

Later, when Adam talks to his friend on the bus, his breath smells REALLY bad.

In fact, it's so bad, he even asks Adam if he brushed his teeth that morning?

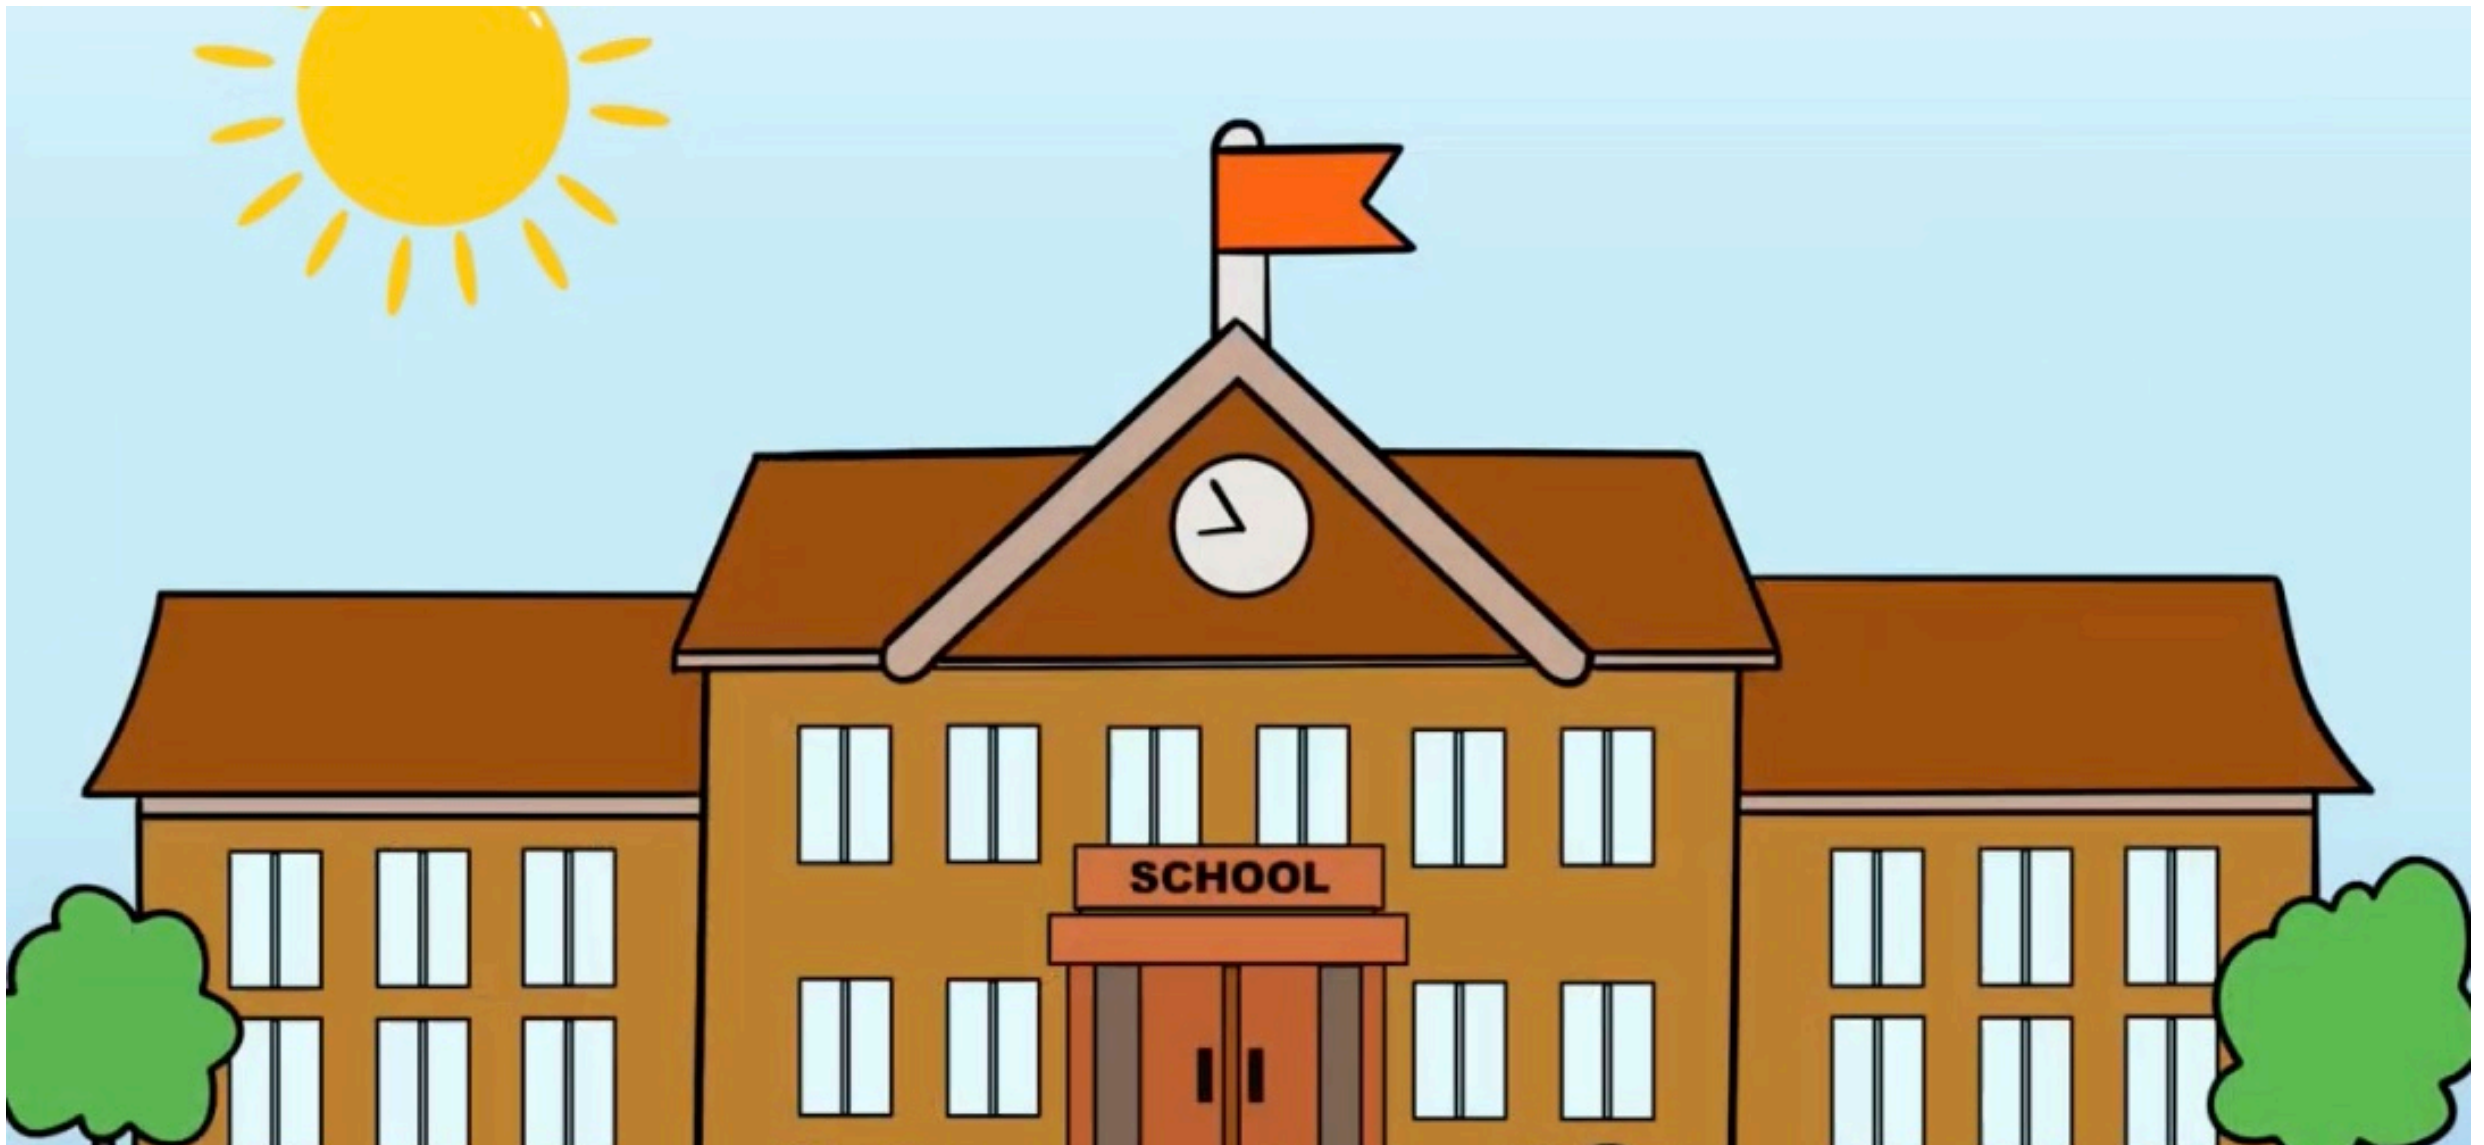

“I’m sorry,” Adam says. “I didn’t brush my teeth today. Do I stink?”

“That’s really gross,” Adam’s friend Ava says. “You should brush your teeth everyday. At least twice a day.”

“I guess my dad was right,” Adam states.
“When he told me to brush my teeth in the morning.”

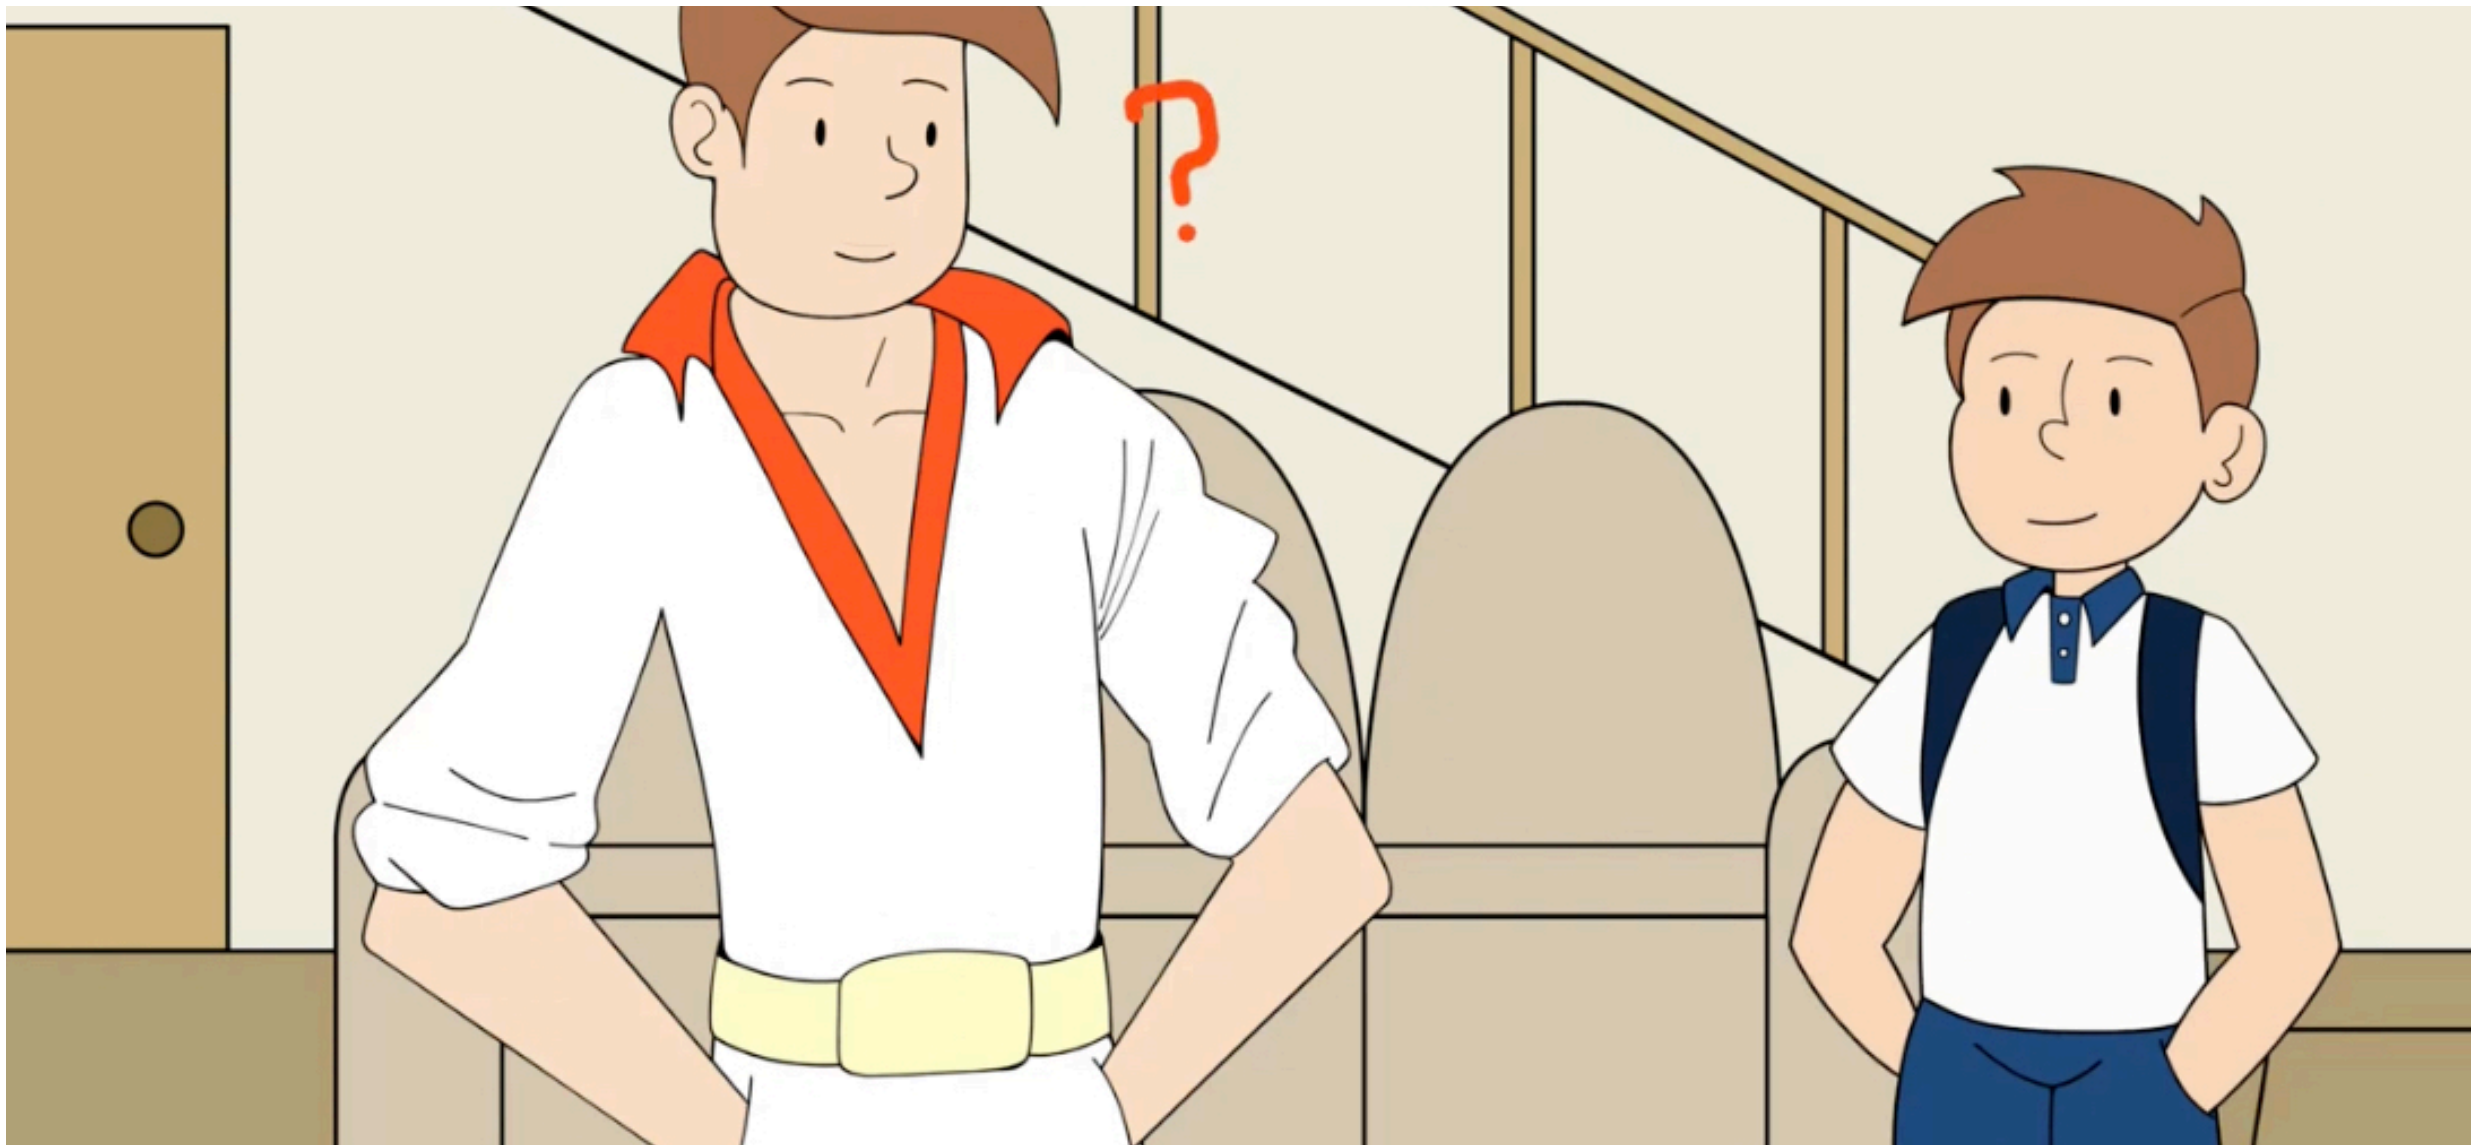

Adam and his friends go to school.

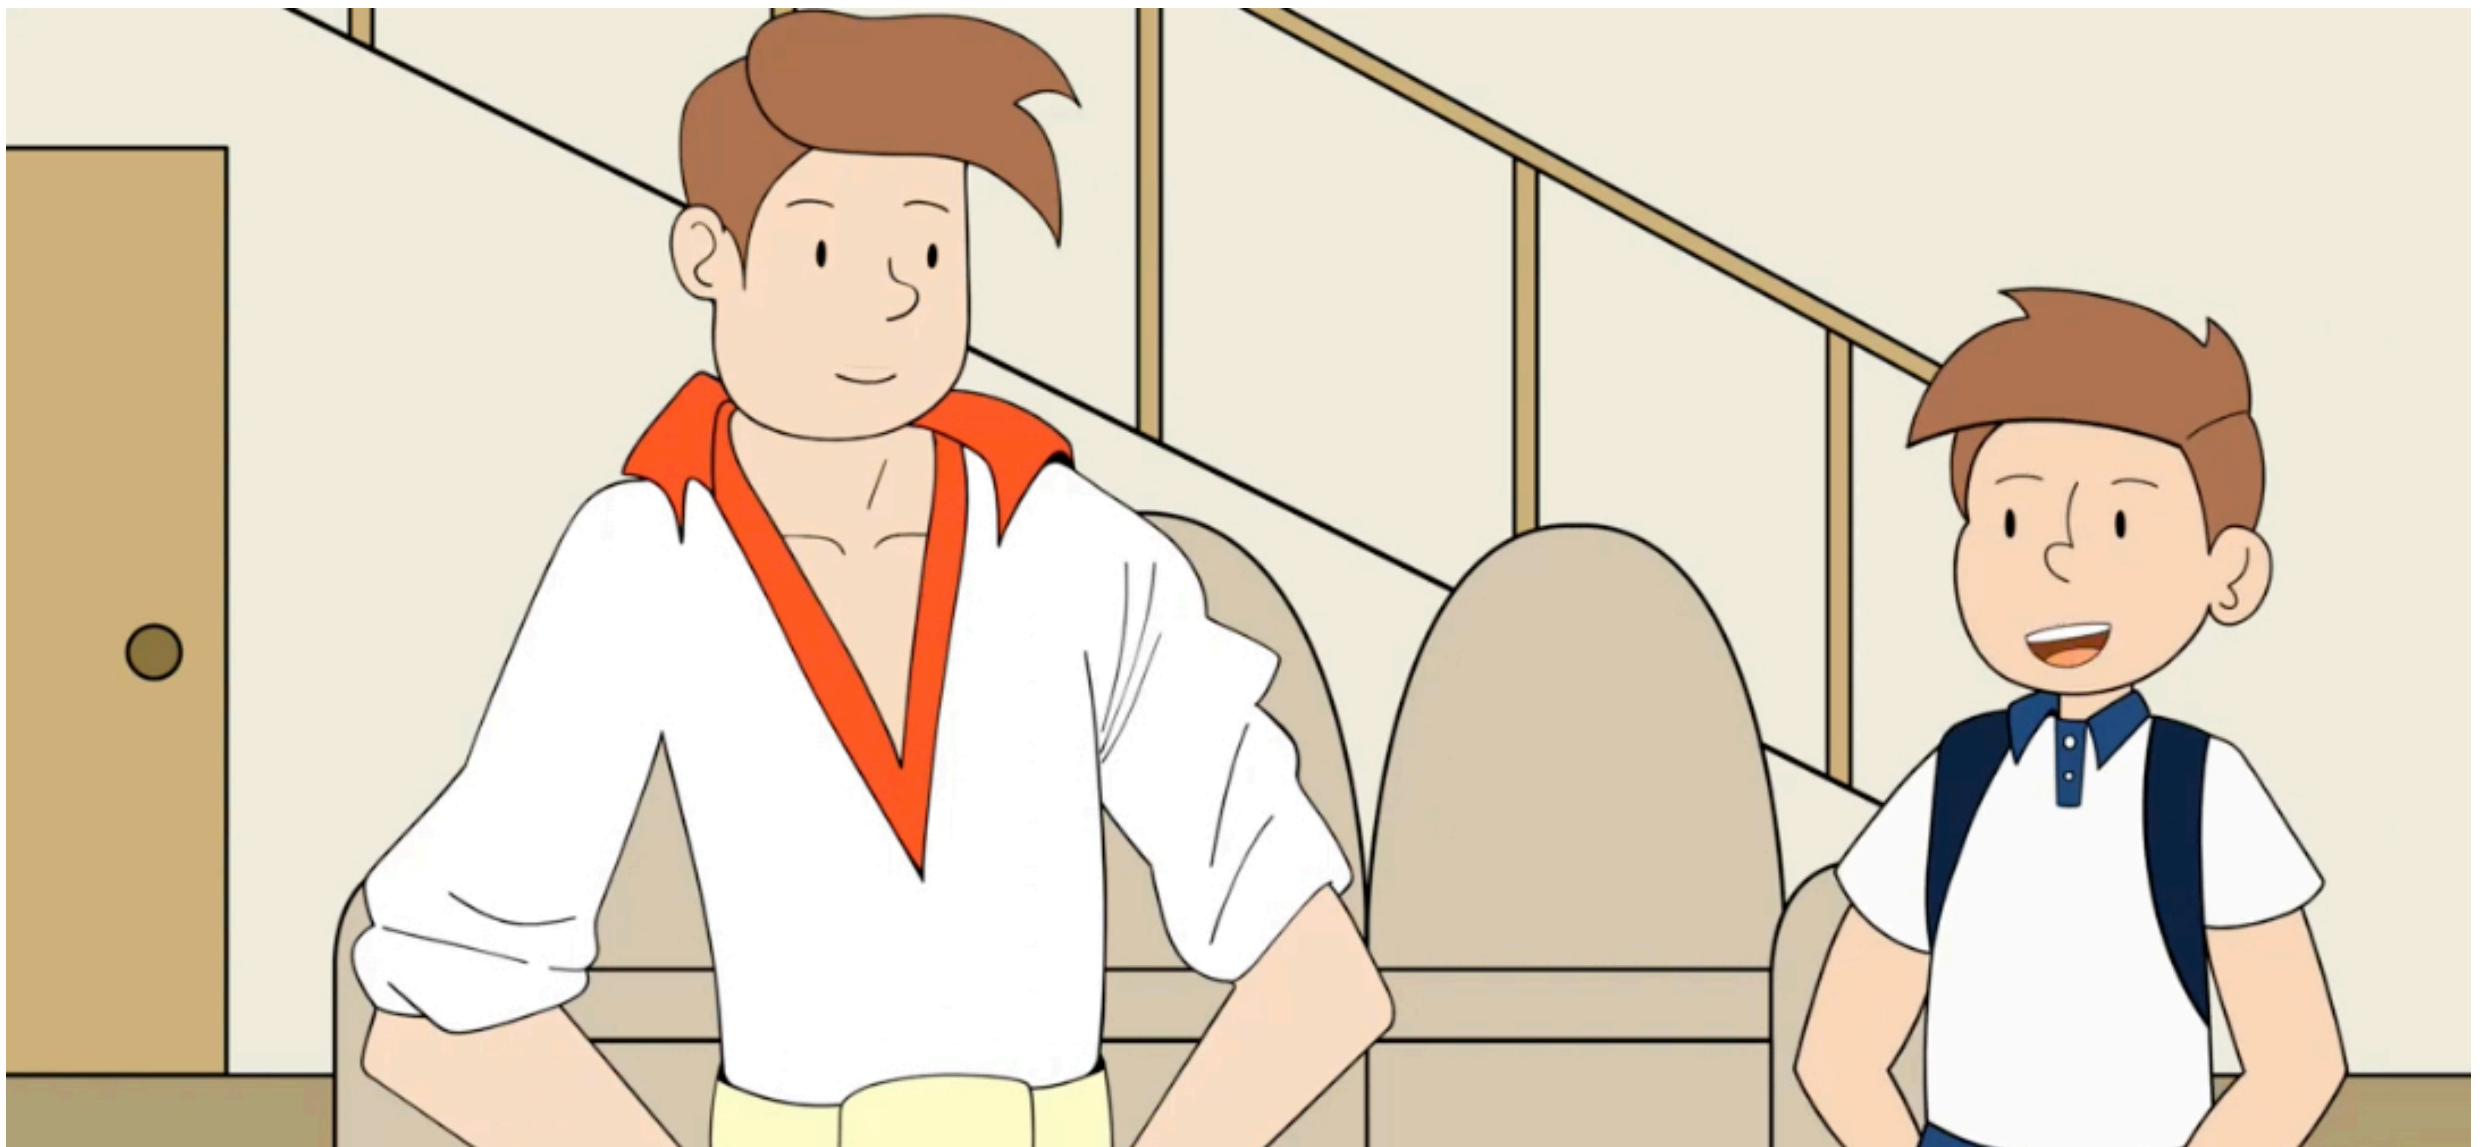

After school, Adam walks home from the bus stop. That's when he sees a cat...

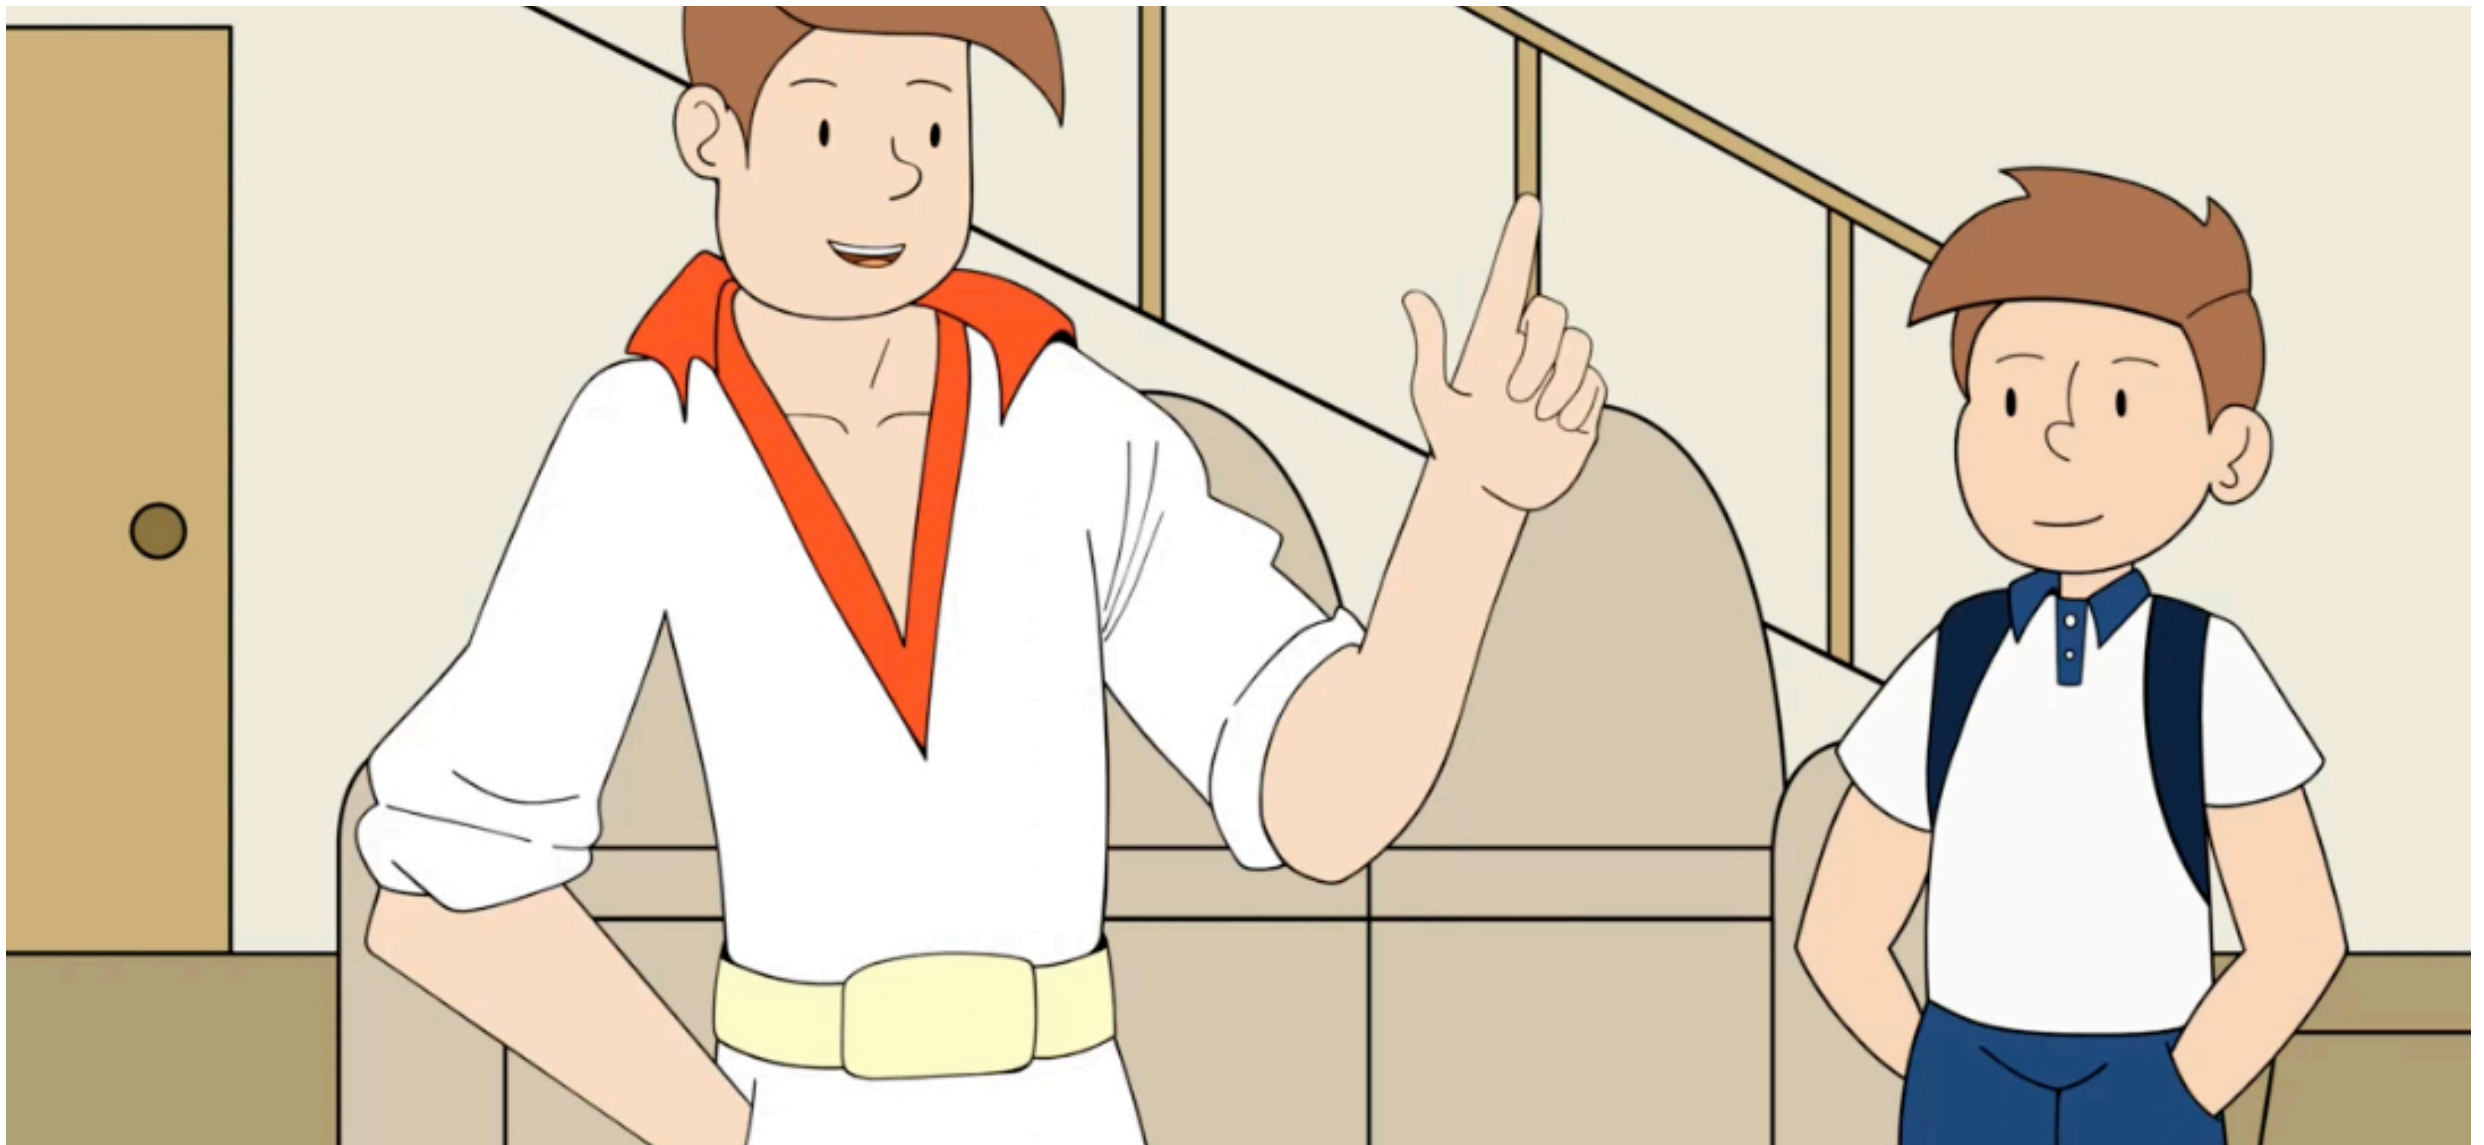

Only it's not a cat... it's a SKUNK! And it sprays a rotten egg smell all over Adam!

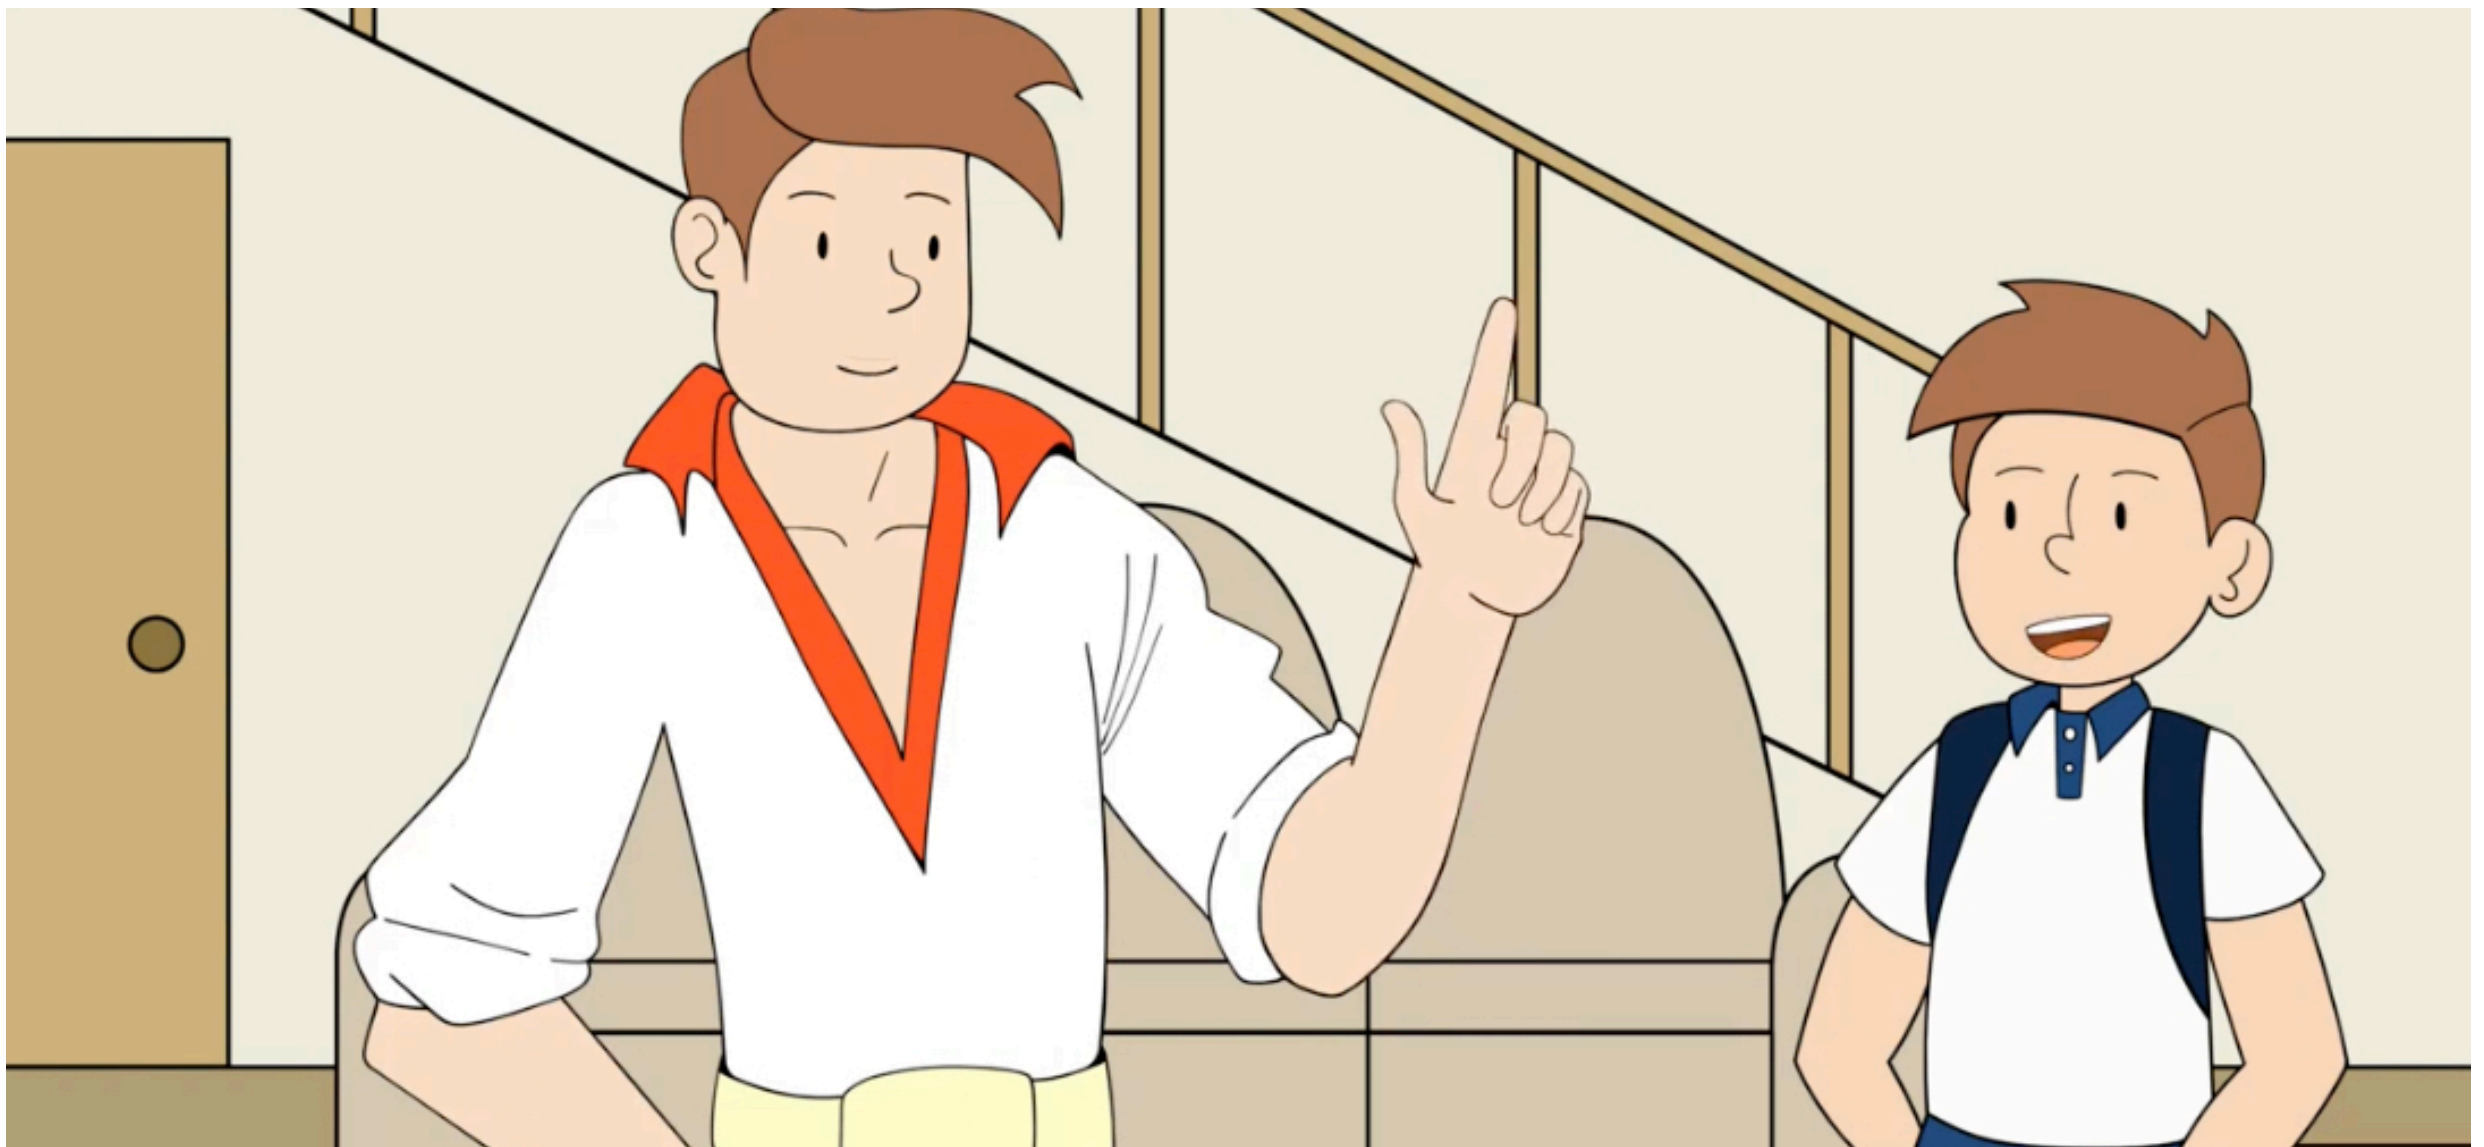

“Adam,” his father asks, smelling him as soon as he walks into the house. “What’s that smell?”

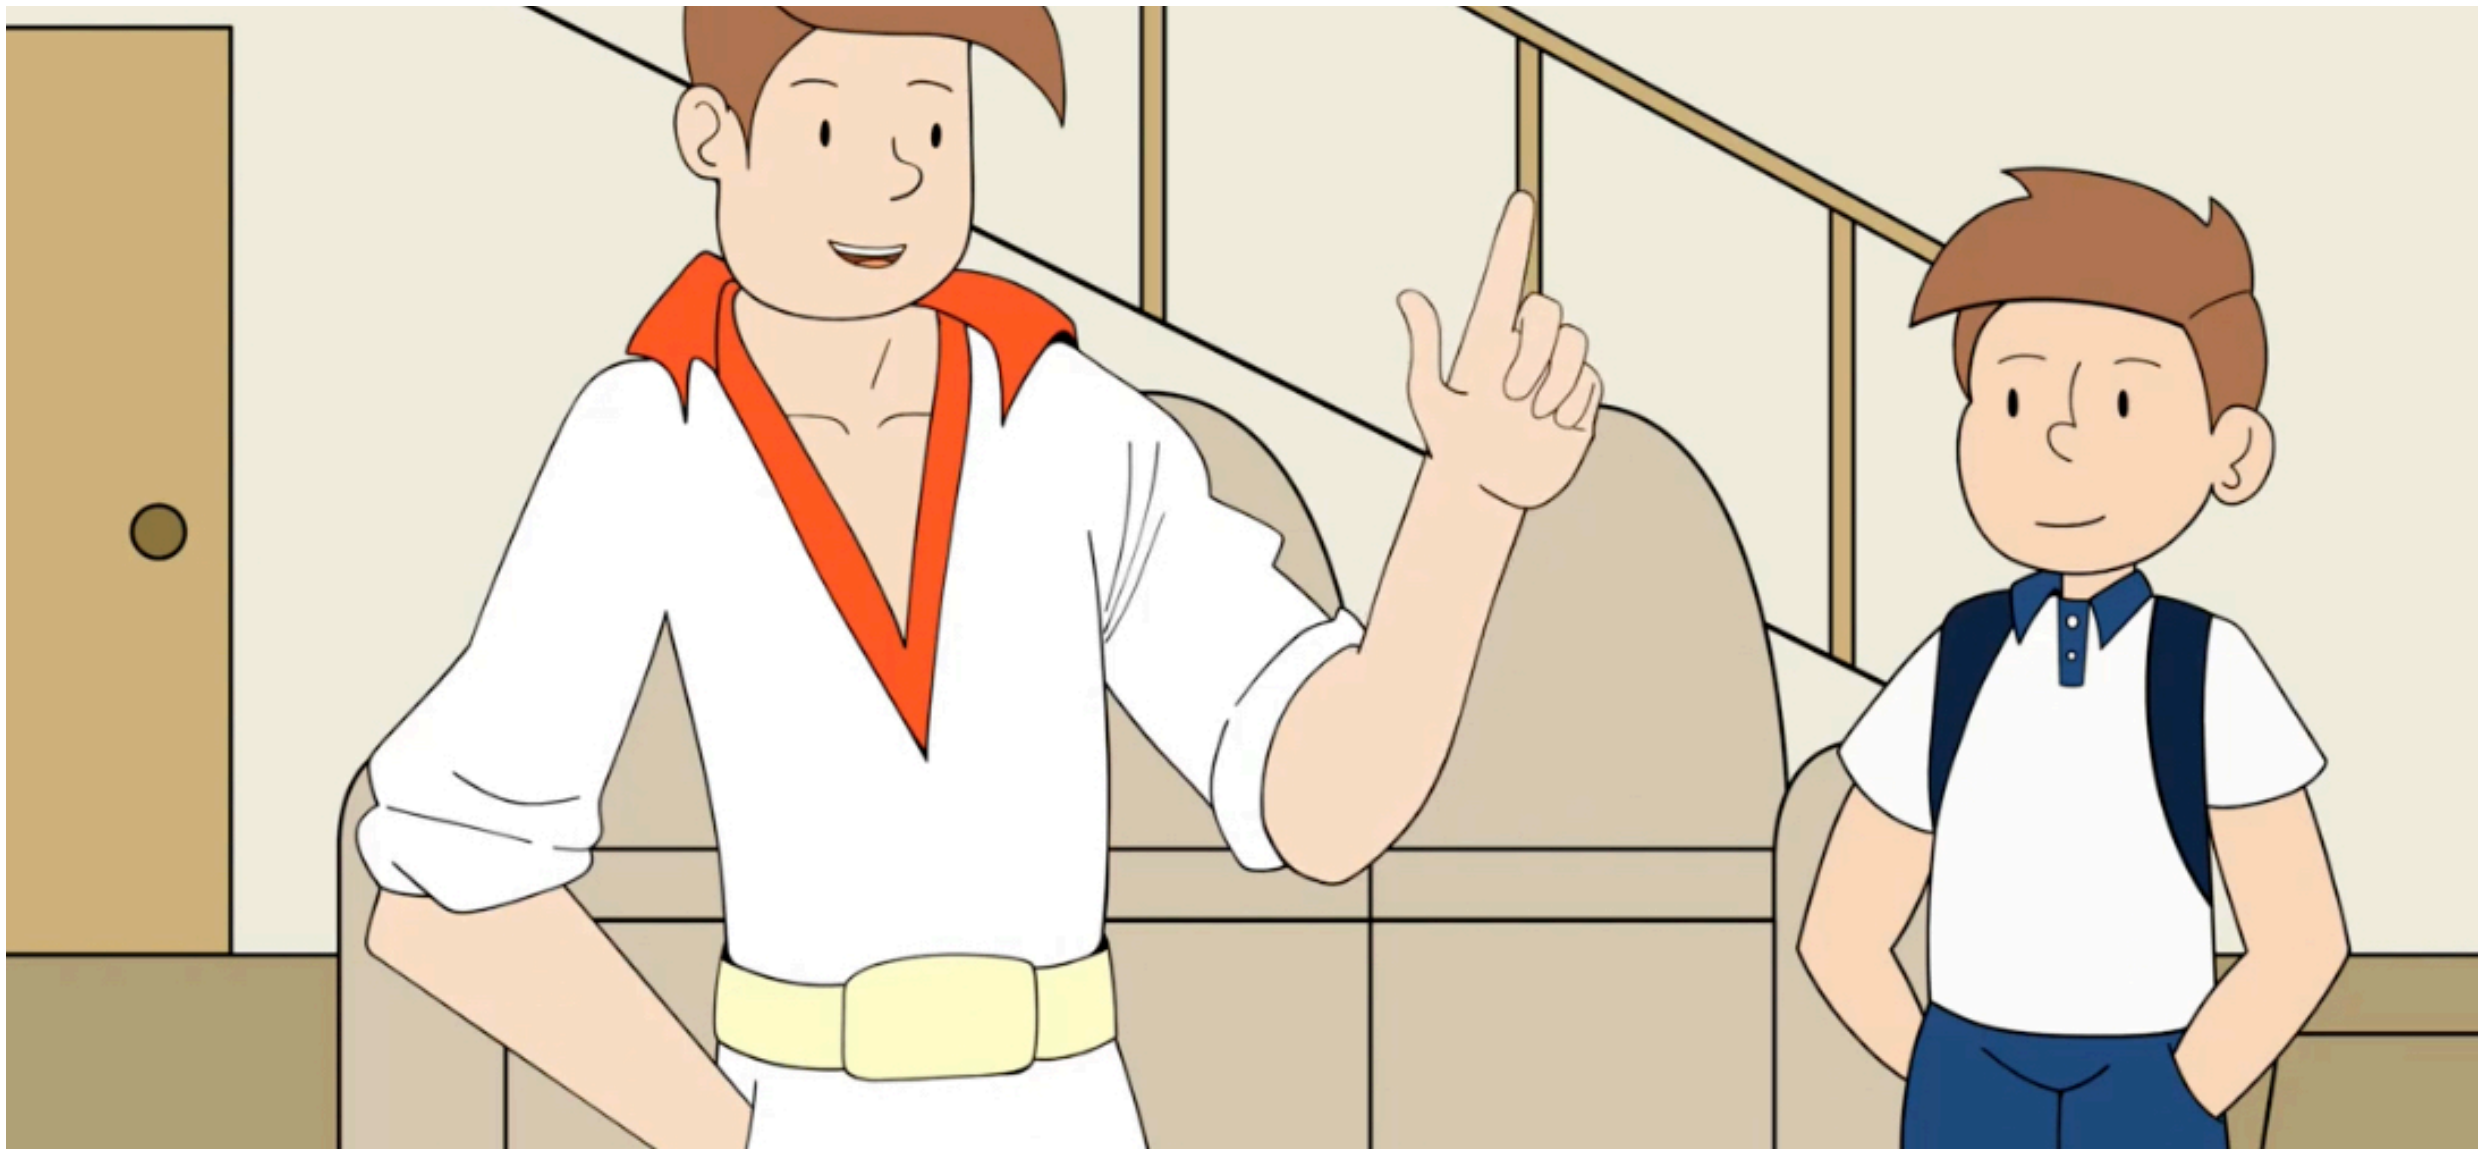

“What? Do I stink?” Adam asks.

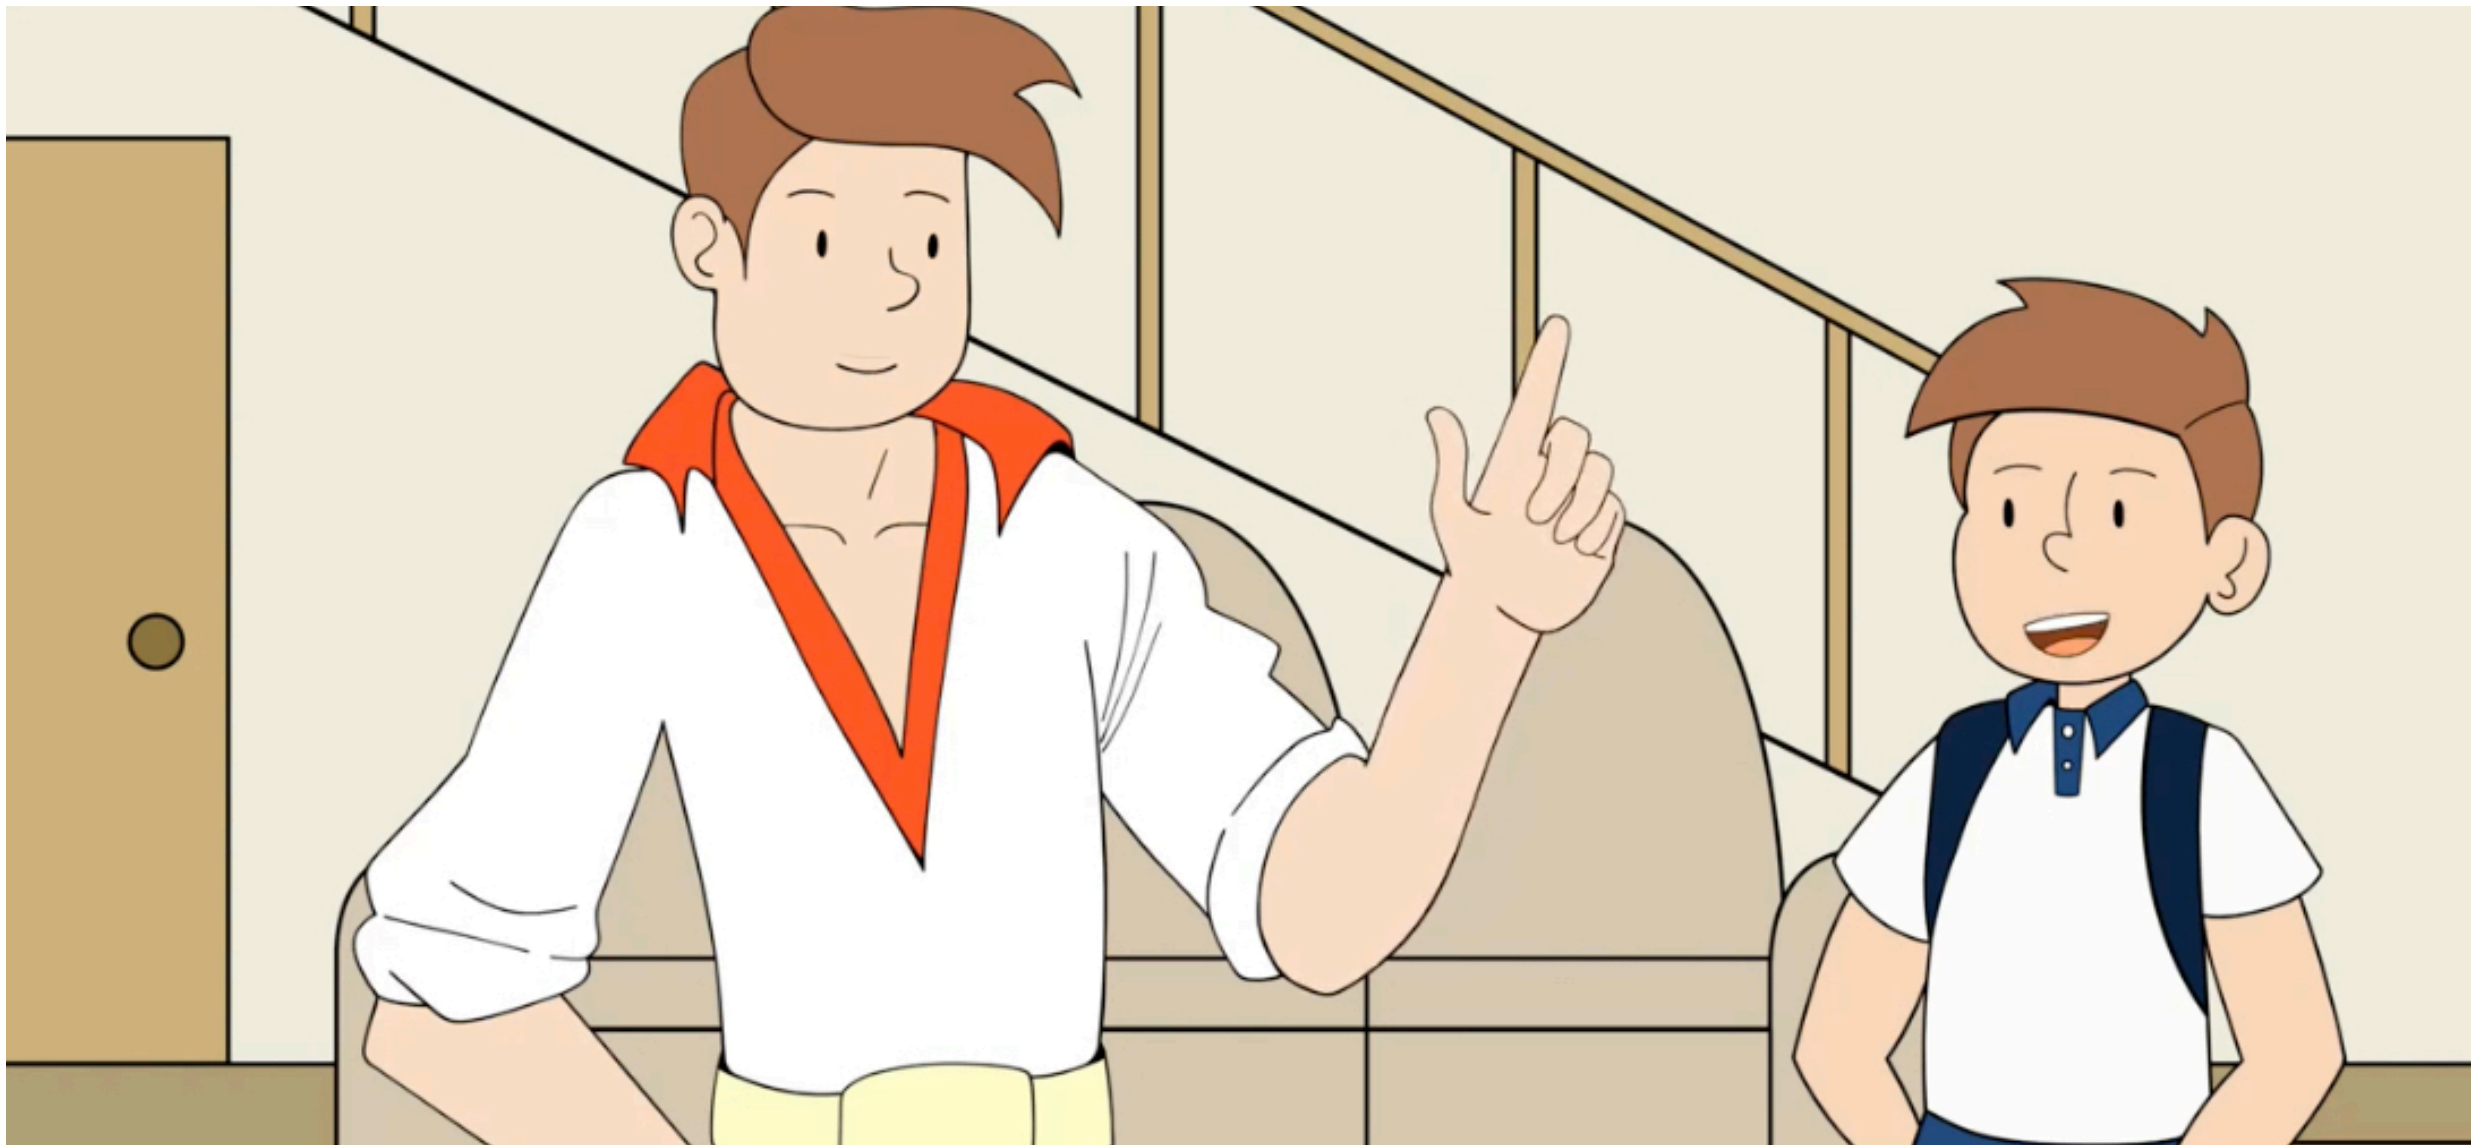

“You probably should change your clothes. And take a shower.” His dad says.

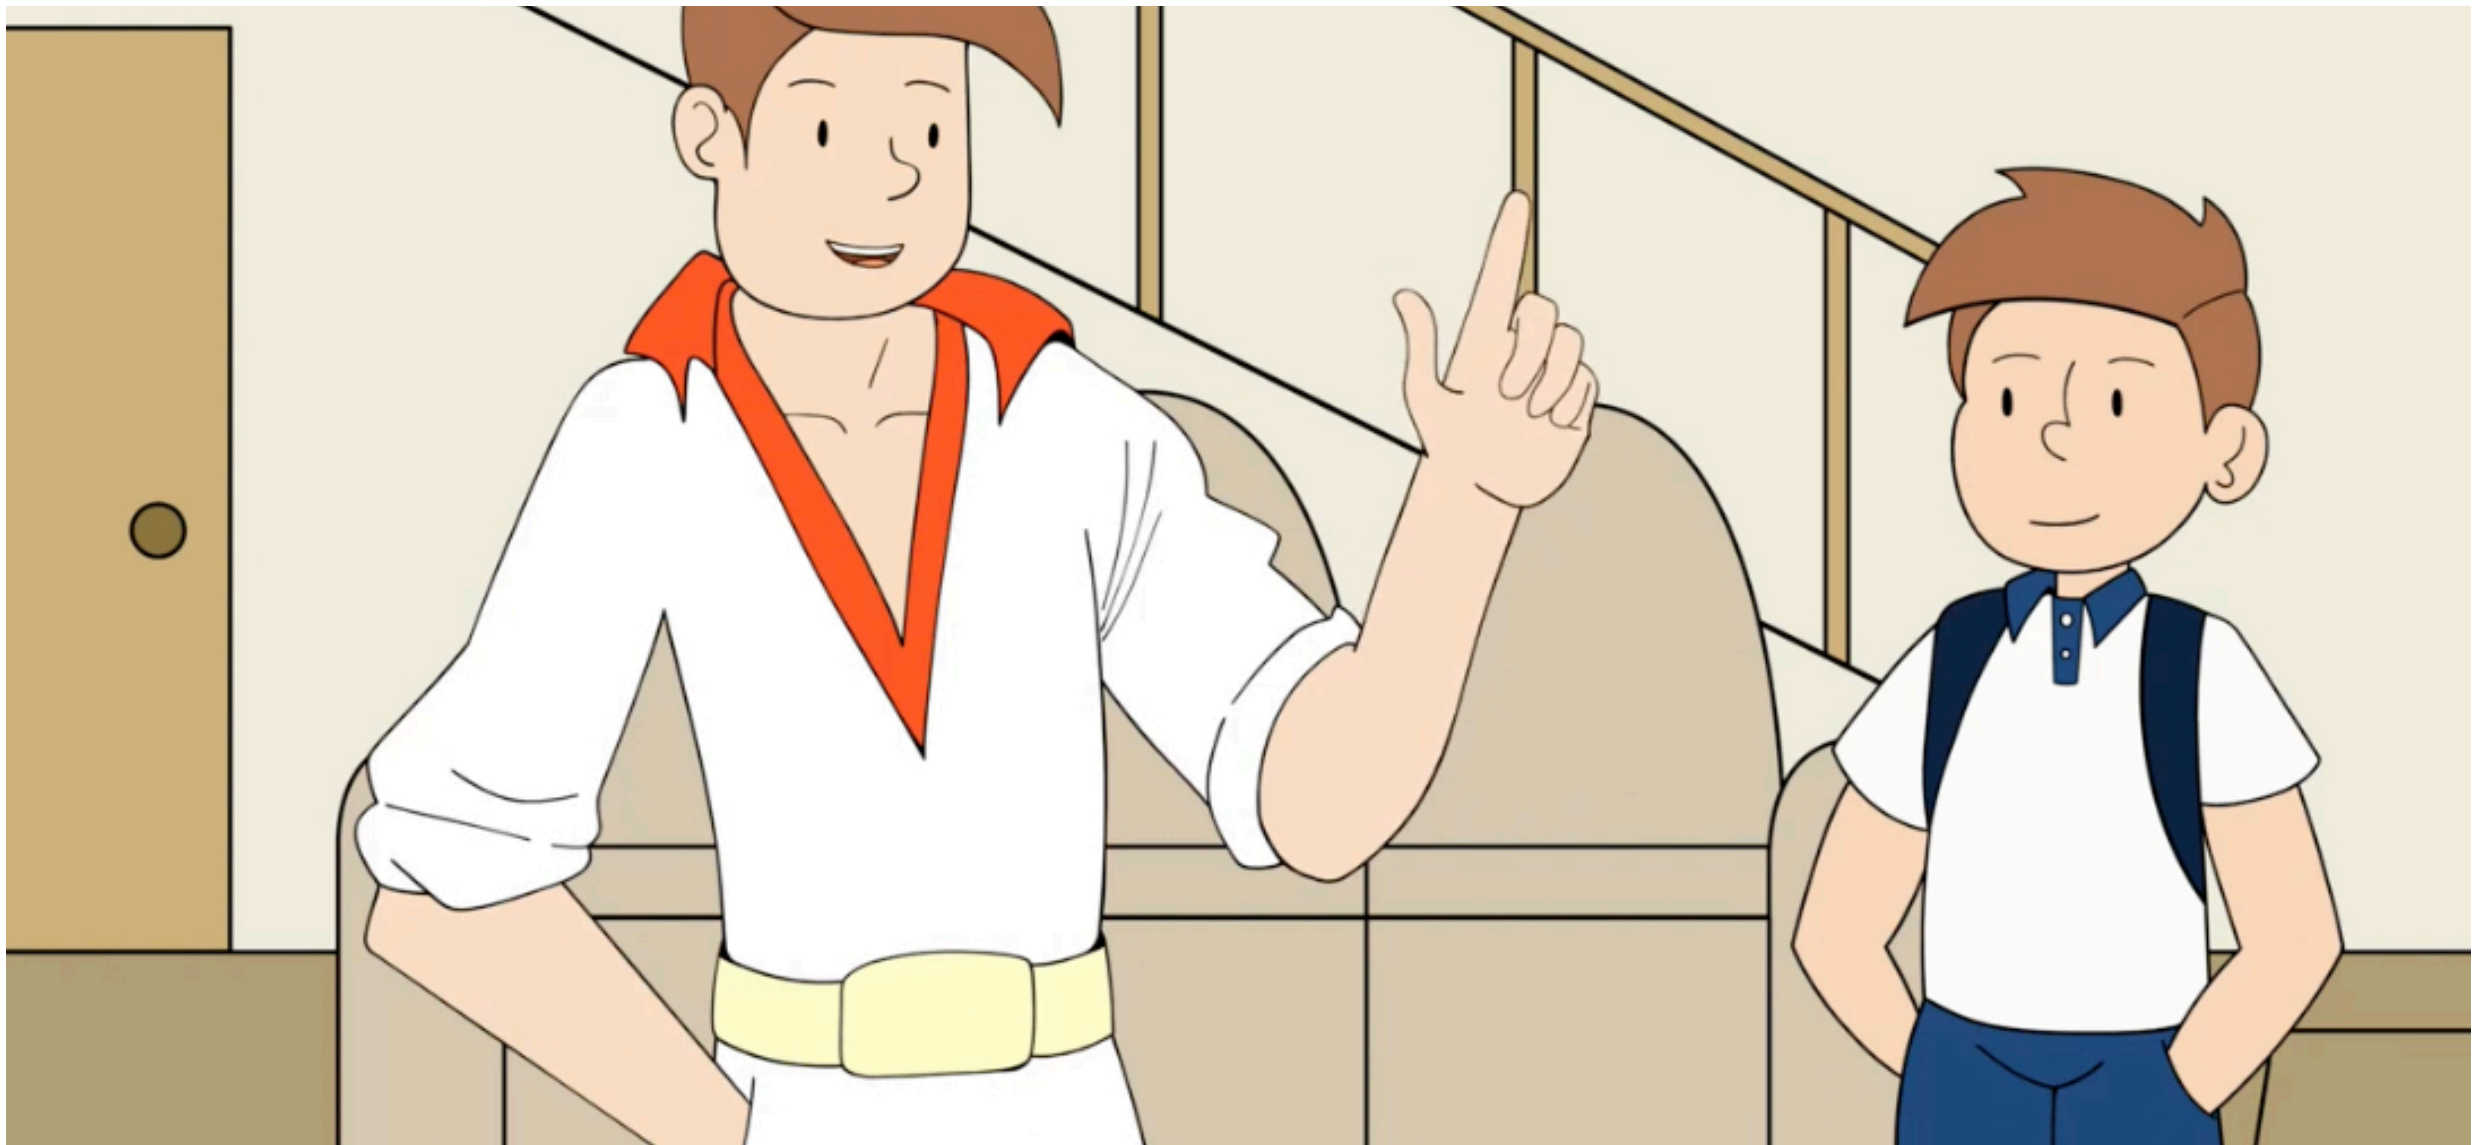

“A shower in the middle of the day?” Adam asks, confused.

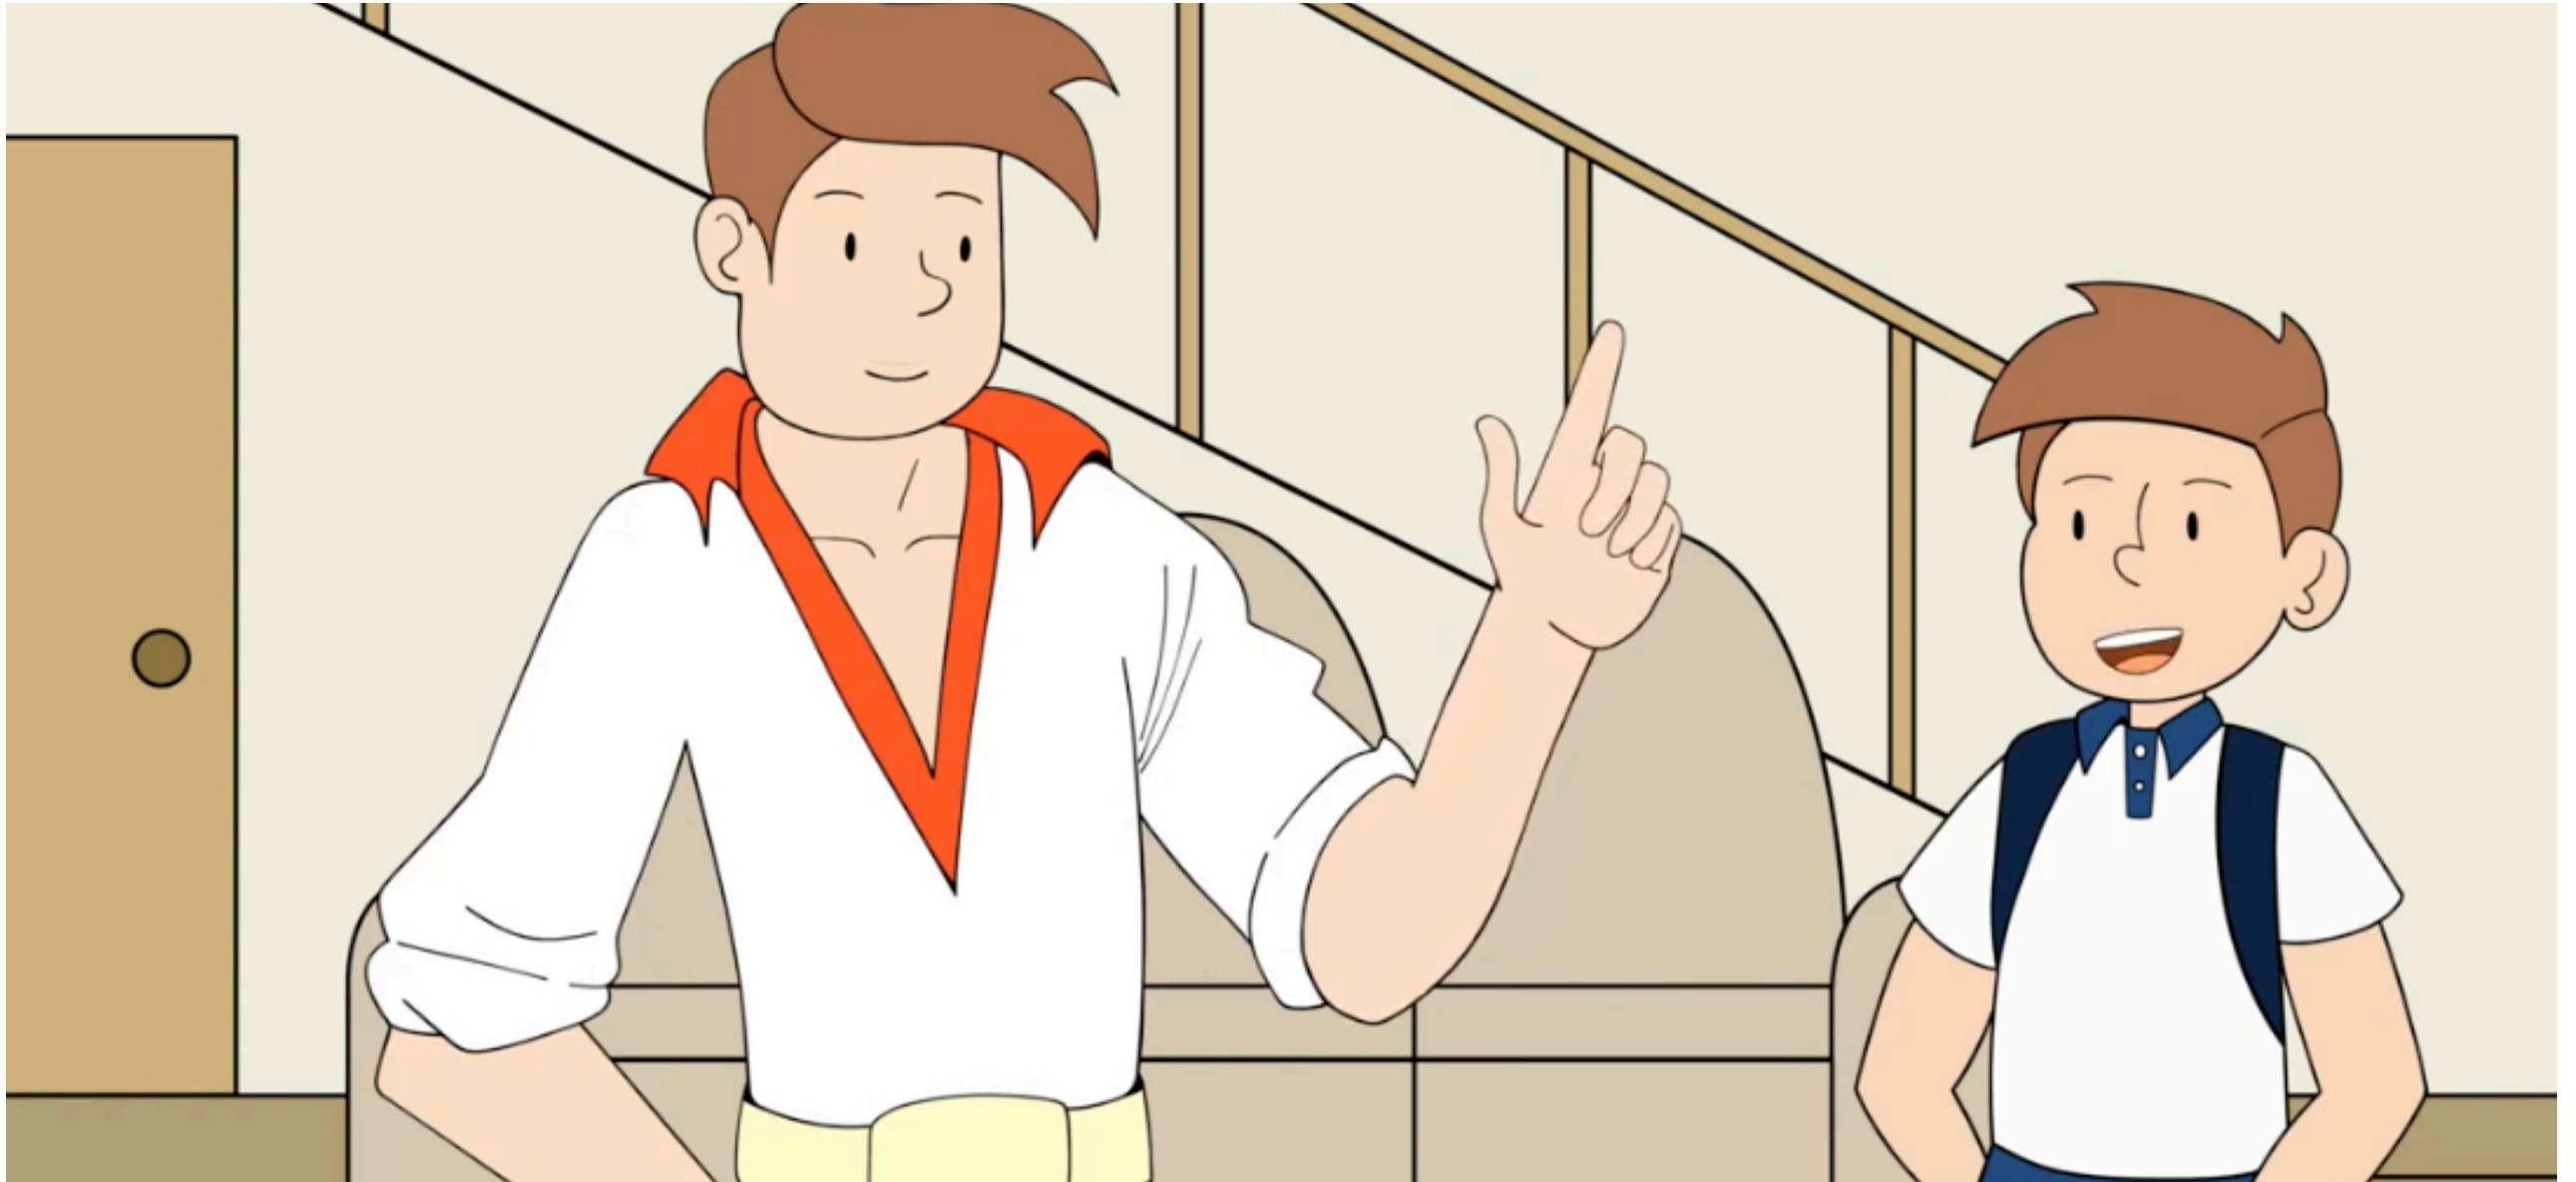

“Yes,” his dad replies. “You might not smell anything but everybody else can. That’s often the case when we smell.”

“Okay,” Adam says. “I’m going to take a shower and change. I might even brush my teeth, too.”

“That’s a good choice, Adam. If you shower everyday, brush your teeth, and wear clean clothes, you almost never have to ask...”

“Do I stink?”
